We're in the circus. The music is playing. The children are talking and laughing. Some people are eating popcorn. A monkey is running in the circus ring. It is wearing blue jacket and yellow trousers. There is a funny hat on its head. A dog is playing with a big orange ball. A clown is riding a purple bike. And a girl is playing a golden trumpet. At night all the animals sleep in their cages. Some of them dream of the wild forest.

The Inuit live in a very cold place in North Canada. A lot of them live in an igloo. They built their house with blocks of ice. Their houses are very warm inside. An igloo is very strong and it is easy to build. You need a knife – that's all! How many rooms are there in an igloo? There aren't many rooms, but sometimes the Inuit built big igloos with a lot of rooms for 15 to 20 people.

The Inuit eat a lot of fish, seals, whales and polar bears: they eat every bit of the animal and they use the skin for clothes to keep them warm in the cold weather and snow. There aren't any shops to buy food, so they have to hunt animals.
